

Another Week Should Find These "High View" Homes ALL SOLD

Price $3,300
Terms: $200 Cash
$26.92 Per Month
 (Which pays directly on the home, including all interest.)

ONLY two weeks ago we first publicly announced the "High View" homes we illustrate for sale. At that time we predicted that their sale would be rapid and urged home seekers to see them before too late to become the owner of one. While announced for sale two weeks ago, you will recall that last Sunday a week was one of the stormiest Sundays Washington had seen for a long time, so we have really had one week's actual selling opportunity—and 11 of the 21 (over half) already sold.

At This Rate They Should All Be Sold This Coming Week

—which also means your last chance for a long time to come, to buy a "High View" home ready for immediate occupancy. As we have told you week after week since the beginning of the development of "High View" home seekers have bought these homes faster than the builders could construct them and maintain the same high standard of excellence throughout the construction and finish that is required of every home sold by SHANNON & LUCHS.

This means that the time is very limited in which you have an opportunity to secure a "High View" home ready for immediate occupancy the moment you make your first cash payment—limited to a few days only—possibly within one day's time, for, while selling 11 of these homes in one day would break all real estate selling records, these "High View" homes have already broken all other real estate records for value at the price, easy terms, etc., in addition to the number and rapidity of the sales made to date.

$3,300 is a low price to pay for such a home as these at "High View." $26.92 per month constitutes remarkably easy payment terms.

Remember, "High View" homes consist of six spacious rooms and bath, situated in one of the best residential sections and highest elevations in the city. Is it any wonder they sell so rapidly? The picture above gives you a faint idea of the artistic appearance of exteriors. The interiors make good the impression you get from the outside. They are equipped with every necessary modern convenience. They are situated on high terraced front lawns and approached by means of cement steps and walks. Each home has a good back yard—front and back porches. Each of these homes enjoys a three-story front effect. Only a few minutes' car ride to the city's business and shopping center. They also enjoy the advantages of two car lines, one one square to the east and the other one square to the west of the "High View" homes.

TOPPING TO PLAY TRAVIS.

Greenwich Golfer Will Be Garden City Crack's Opponent Today.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 6.—Harold J. Topping of the Greenwich Country Club defeated Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, the title holder and the French champion, on the nineteenth green in yesterday's semi-final round of the twelfth annual United North and South amateur golf championship. The medal scores were approximately 76 for Evans and 79 for Topping, who spent some of his time in the traps for which the No. 2 course is famous.

In the lower half of the championship bracket Walter Davis of Garden City, at the top of his game, won from Parker W. Whittemore of Brookline, 6 up and 5 to play. He plays Topping today. In the consolation between James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit and W. C. Fowkes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Standish took the match by 4 up and 3 to play. In the upper half of the bracket Dr. C. M. Gardner of Agawam defeated to E. A. Scofield, Jr., of Weeburn.

ORPHANS' HOME RAIDED.

Head of Chicago Institution Arrested and Children Cared For.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Investigators from the state's attorney's office last night raided the Hudson Orphan Home, took "Rev." J. H. Hudson, a negro, into custody and sent twenty-six children found in the institution to charitable institutions and private homes. Representatives of the juvenile court, who were responsible for the raid, say they will prosecute Hudson. He is accused of having beaten and otherwise abused the children. Although he denied the charges, he was taken to the police station. Parents of the children said they believed Hudson was giving them "industrial training." Clothing and other property the children had obtained in the name of "charity" were found in the house.

BOY, TWELVE, A WANDERER.

Has Strayed From Home Seventy-Seven Times in Eight Years.

CHICAGO, April 6.—For the seventy-seventh time in eight years the police have been asked to search for Raymond Williams, twelve years old, who ran away from home yesterday. Raymond disappeared for the first time when he was four years old. In the following seven years he departed seventy-five more times. This is the first time he had stayed away for more than a year and his mother thought she had cured him of his "wanderlust." "He's up to his old tricks," she told the police. "Still I can see a change in him. Before he left this time he failed to eat a big meal. That's the first time he ever overlooked such a thing."

IDENTIFIED BY RING

Wedding Band Found on Body of Mrs. Greever.

DEATH FROM DROWNING

Coroner Rejects Theory There May Have Been Foul Play.

WOMAN'S SCREAMS HEARD

Fort Hunt Soldiers Tell of Hearing Cries on Night Pastor's Wife Disappeared.

"W. H. G. to N. R. B., June 27, 1901." This inscription in a ring served to identify the body found on the shore of the Potomac near Fort Hunt as that of Mrs. Roberta Greever, wife of Rev. W. H. Greever of Columbia, S. C., who disappeared from 11th and F streets northwest the afternoon of Saturday, February 17. The body was discovered yesterday afternoon.

A. H. Kohn of Columbia, S. C., accompanied Rev. Greever to this city. They reached here shortly before noon and went to police headquarters, where they conferred with Inspector Boardman and Detective Armstrong, later going to the morgue. The articles of jewelry taken from the body were turned over to the minister.

The identification of the body terminated the long search which has been made by the husband, brother, brother-in-law and a host of friends of the popular Lutheran minister and cleared the mystery which so completely puzzled the police.

Stories told by artillerymen at Fort Hunt of having heard screams of a woman on the reservation the night of February 17, about three hours after Mrs. Greever disappeared from her nurse, suggested to Capt. R. F. McMillan, post commander, the possibility of foul play, and he reported the incident to Coroner Kerby. The latter attached no importance to the incident.

Result of Investigation.

Because of the absence of papers from the Virginia authorities, Coroner Nevitt this morning made an investigation and gave a certificate of death by drowning. The certificate does not contain a suggestion as to how Mrs. Greever got in the water. Dr. Nevitt heard statements concerning Mrs. Greever's condition before she fell from her nurse. He also was told that about twenty years ago Mrs. Greever suffered an attack of melancholia.

It is thought that Mrs. Greever, who had expressed a desire to see her three children at Columbia, S. C., and Tazewell, Va., started to walk to these places and fell in the river.

Captain Sees Body.

The police first became active when Christian Janson, captain of the naval tug Indian, reported having seen a body floating in the river about twenty yards off the end of the abandoned pier at Fort Hunt, about 6 o'clock Thursday evening. Lieut. Dean and crew went down the river in the Vigilant yesterday morning in search.

Nothing was seen of the body by the crew of the boat. The river shores were searched as far down as Ghent. On the return trip the Vigilant reached Fort Hunt about one hour after the body had been found on the shore only a short distance from the new wharf. Private John L. Austin of the 4th Coast Artillery discovered the body while gathering grass for a duck blind.

The high tide of yesterday morning deposited the body at the extreme edge of high-water mark and behind a log. There was little likelihood of the next tide taking it away.

"What are you doing there?" Private Austin called, when he saw the feet. He afterward explained that he thought one of the soldiers was lying there. "But in an instant I realized my mistake," Private Austin told a Star reporter, "and it was some minutes before I could get myself together."

Wedding Ring Identification.

Only three of the soldiers knew of the finding of the body until after Capt. R. F. McMillan, commander of the post, had been notified. Dr. H. M. Darnall, post surgeon, went to the river front and examined the body. He had a card giving the description of Mrs. Greever. The clothing he soon found, tallied with what was contained in the printed description, and there was also the plain gold band wedding ring on her finger, but the ring was not removed until the arrival of Coroner A. D. Kerby. It was found to contain the inscription, "W. H. G. to N. R. B., June 27, 1901."

Detective Armstrong and Lieut. Dean examined the ring when it was taken from Mrs. Greever's hand on the wharf last night, read the inscription and then certain of the identification. Capt. McMillan detailed two artillerymen to guard the corpse on the shore while the coroner reached the military reservation about 8 o'clock. He would not permit any one to touch the body, fearing interference by the state officials.

Woman's Voice Heard.

It was while Lieut. Dean, Detective Armstrong and others were waiting for the arrival of Coroner Kerby that Capt. McMillan related the story of a woman's voice having been heard on or near the reservation Saturday night, February 17, between 8 and 9 o'clock, about three hours after Mrs. Greever disappeared from her nurse, Miss Louise Ryan, at 11th and F streets northwest.

Corporal Cameron was on guard that night, and he and two others heard the voice. One of the men says he understood the woman to say, "Don't strike me again, George," while another artilleryman said he heard a smothered cry of "Mother" and moaning. The sound came from the direction of the marsh to the south of the reservation.

Sunday morning the incident was reported to headquarters. Capt. McMillan promptly ordered out an entire company to make an investigation. The artillerymen made a thorough search of the reservation and waterfront, some of them going out on the ice, but no trace of any one was found. It was recalled that the first last night that a man was drowned in the river between Forts Hunt and Washington that night, although the body was found on the opposite side of the river was distinctly heard.

Coroner Kerby was inclined to believe that Mrs. Greever had fallen in the river about the city and that the strong current of recent days had washed her body down stream. He turned the body over to Lieut. Dean and it was brought to the city.

Brother Arrives Here.

Adolph T. Bruegel, brother of Mrs. Greever, arrived here from Philadelphia early last night and went to the morgue. Miss Ryan, who was Mrs. Greever's nurse at the time she disappeared, also went to the morgue. She had a breastpin taken from the body and were perfectly satisfied with the identification. The finding of the body comes as a relief to members of the family, although they had hoped to find Mrs. Greever alive, and was not until the last few days that her husband abandoned hope of finding her. Before her marriage Mrs. Greever was Miss Roberta Bruegel, daughter of the late Rev. G. A. Bruegel, a Lutheran minister. She had resided in New York and Pennsylvania. Seven years ago the GreEVERS moved to Columbia, S. C., where Mr. Greever was editor of the Lutheran Pilot. Walton, the eldest child of the GreEVERS, was two years old when the family moved to Columbia. Two other children are Miriam, six, and Virginia, three and one-half years old. The children were taken to the home of a brother of Mr. Greever at Tazewell, Va., when their mother was brought here to be treated for a nervous breakdown.

BENJAMIN L. WHEELER ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

Carefully Plans Death in the Kitchen of His Home—Due to Ill Health.

Carefully planning his death and removing two canary birds from the room, Benjamin L. Wheeler, sixty-four years old, took his life early this morning in his home, 1427 N street northwest, by inhaling illuminating gas.

Mr. Wheeler, who had been in ill health for some time, left his bed at an early hour and went to the lower floor. His wife thought he was going to the kitchen to prepare a cup of coffee. When he reached the kitchen he took two canary birds in their cages to the parlor. Returning to the kitchen he closed the door, removed a gas tube from a stove, attached one end of it to a gas jet, which he opened, and, while seated in his favorite armchair, breathed the poisonous gas through the other end of the tube.

Body Found by Wife.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Mrs. Wheeler went to the kitchen to prepare breakfast, and found her husband's body. A physician was called and stated that death had occurred several hours before. Coroner Nevitt made an examination and gave a certificate of death by suicide.

Mr. Wheeler was born near Hagers-town, Md., and had been a resident of this city for thirty-five years. For many years he conducted a grocery store at 18th and K streets northwest. He failed in business several years ago, and this, with ill health, caused despondency and prompted the suicide.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed, but it is expected services will be held Monday at his late residence, and that De Molay Commandery of the Knights Templar will have charge.

LOSES JOB; ENDS LIFE.

John Blau, Inmate of Soldiers' Home, Shoots Self in Mouth.

Brooding over his prospective removal from the superintendency of the Sheridan building at Soldiers' Home, John Blau, eighty-four years old, an inmate of the home for twenty-six years past, this morning shot himself in the mouth.

Other inmates of the institution heard the shot and hurried to Blau's room. His body was found on the floor, the pistol lying nearby.

Blau, who was a native of Germany, was in the army for twenty-five years. He had been superintendent of Sheridan building several years, and two days ago he was told it would soon be necessary for him to step aside and give the position to a younger man.

All day yesterday he brooded over his prospective removal, but gave no intimation of an intention to end his life.

ROUTED BY BALD EAGLE.

Lumberman Rescued From Huge Bird, Badly Injured.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., April 6.—Milton Steves of this city was nearly killed in a fight with a bald eagle this week near North Creek lumber camp. He was rescued, badly wounded, by a fellow-lumberman, and is today under the care of physicians.

Steves came upon two eagles devouring the carcass of a calf and shot one of the birds. Before he could reload his gun the other eagle attacked him. He struck at the bird repeatedly with his rifle butt, but the eagle, although one of its wings was broken, was getting the better of the battle when a hunter killed the feathered fighter with a club.

The bird weighed seventy-five pounds and measured nine feet from tip to tip.

ALL-ALASKA DOG RACE ON.

Alexander Holmsen, Driving Siberian Wolf Hounds, Is Leading.

NOME, Alaska, April 6.—Alexander Holmsen, driving John Johnson's team of Siberian wolf hounds, was holding his lead in the all-Alaska sweepstakes dog race, according to the latest report. Holmsen covered 175 miles in the first thirty hours and expected to reach Nome, 203 miles from Nome, last night, completing the first half of the 412-mile course over the snow trail.

A. A. (Scotty) Allen, driving the Darling dogs, and Charles Johnson, driving for Fox Ramsey, are racing together with the Oliver team, driven by O. Bratford, trailing.

The Oliver dogs are said to be in bad condition. Their feet are sore and bleeding, but they are going steadily.

ADMIRAL PEARY LAUDS ANTARCTIC EXPLORERS

Discoverer of North Pole Receives Medal on Anniversary of His Victory.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary and his two "boys," George Borup and Donald B. MacMillan, who are now going to the North Pole, were honored by the National Geographic Society and the American Museum of Natural History and other geographical societies this summer, divided the honors last night at a big South Pole attainment celebration in the Natural History Museum, at West 77th street and Central Park West.

Today is the third anniversary of Peary's north pole discovery, and this event was also celebrated at last night's meeting, a medal being presented to Admiral Peary by Zenas Crane and Herbert Bridgman from the Peary Arctic Club.

Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the museum, presided at the meeting, and, in addition to the medals, Admiral Peary and Borup and MacMillan, there were addresses in which the courage and determination of both the veteran and the two young explorers were highly praised by Vice President John Greenough of the American Geographical Society, James E. Gore of the National Geographic Society and Henry G. Bryant of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia.

Admiral Peary's Address.
 Mr. Osborn briefly described recent polar expeditions and the museum's part in them. He was followed by Admiral Peary.

"Amundsen's journey has shown," Admiral Peary said, "what was practically known before from Shackleton's expedition, that the south pole is located in a great elevated snow plateau about 11,000 feet above the sea level. Amundsen's determination of the head of the Ross sea ice barrier is of interest in connection with the theory of some geographers that Antarctica was divided into two principal masses, separated by a trough filled with barrier ice, extending from Ross sea to Weddell sea. Amundsen's journey appears to negative this theory."

"Amundsen's journey also demonstrated conclusively," as have recent journeys in the north polar regions, that the Eskimo dog is the one and only motive power for polar expeditions.

"The contrast between fundamental physical conditions at the north pole and the south pole is most striking. The north pole is located in a deep polar sea basin. The south pole is located in a great elevated snow plateau of unusual altitude."

Advantages in the South.
 "From this striking contrast in physical conditions arises and results the great advantage which south polar exploration has over north polar, namely, that it can be carried on over a permanent fixed surface remaining the same from year to year, instead of over the treacherous and unstable surface of an ice-covered ocean."

"With the attainment of the south pole effected, there remains now to be accomplished in the antarctic regions another traverse from the opposite side of antarctica to the pole, which, with the journeys of Amundsen and Scott, will give us continuous traverse section of the antarctic continent, and then the filling in of the remaining unknown interior and circumference of that great region. The German expedition under Lieut. Filchner and the Australian expedition under Dr. Mawson may be counted upon to make extensive inroads upon this terra incognita.

"But there will still be ample room and work left for an antarctic expedition from the United States, which I earnestly hope may materialize as a matter of national duty, privilege, prestige and morale."

The medal which was presented to Admiral Peary is a five-pointed star of sections made from the great Altimeter meteorite which the admiral brought from his resting place near Cape York. It was not set in gold and was inscribed with the dates of the five achievements which Peary has accomplished with the Peary Arctic Club's help.

Crocker Land Expedition.
 George Borup, describing the Crocker Land expedition, which he and MacMillan are going to make, told his audience that he and his fellow-explorer intended to reach Sydney about the middle of July next summer and would start north by way of Cape Thomas Hubbard and Crocker Land.

"We shall send our ship home, and we may separate from each other," said Borup. "We will collect specimens and make notes on our way. Our ship will return for us after two years."

HER JOY SHORT-LIVED.
 Mrs. Lipsitz Does Not Long Survive Her Victory for Her Daughter.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Less than a week after being victorious in her fight to have her daughter Mariette admitted to the United States by the immigration authorities at New York, Mrs. Schulle Lipsitz is dead.

Mrs. Lipsitz was seventy-six years old. She had been restored to her husband after harrowing experiences in Russia and even greater struggles on reaching Ellis Island, New York. On reaching New York Mrs. Lipsitz was told her daughter could not be admitted, because she was dumb. Weeks of worry followed, and then as if by a miracle she regained her speech. Broken in health, Mrs. Lipsitz arrived in Chicago with Mariette only a few days ago. On arriving she remarked to her children and grandchildren: "I came here to please my heart, but my soul will soon fly away."

CHINESE GARDENER'S THRIFT.
 Accumulates Fortune at the Rate of $20,000 a Year.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., April 6.—A thirty-acre farm here, which for ten years has been devoted exclusively to raising Chinese vegetables for the restaurants in New York's Chinatown, is to be cut up into building lots.

The proprietor of the farm, Louis Sun, has cleared nearly $20,000 a year on his garden, which is the only one of its kind in the east. His accumulated profits have been carefully invested, and he will retire to spend his declining years on a small suburban estate near here.

An unidentified white man, apparently sixty-five years old, was struck and killed by the cars on the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington railroad, near Charlestown, Cecil county, Md., Wednesday night.
